SPEAKING

WHAT WE TALK ABOUT

THE FUTURE IS NOW

What will people want next, and how will it shape not just culture or your business, but how we exist? 10 culture trends and predictions for 2027, from the age of authorship to why we've had our fill of availability gluttony. Across culture, food & bev, alphas, silvers, retail, tech, sport, wellness, and travel. Zero category silos. No obvious takes. You'll leave with a clearer view of what's coming and better questions to ask about what comes next.

THINKING IN POSSIBILITIES

Most brands stay boxed in by their own category. This is about breaking out of the silo, thinking beyond the confines of where you're supposed to play, and taking hold of your brand's trajectory instead of letting the market decide it for you.

THE AGE OF AUTHORSHIP

AI just made building almost free, so execution is no longer the advantage. The hard part is mattering. Why vision, not output, is the real differentiator now, and what it means for brands when anyone can make anything.

THE PUBLIC CMO

The most powerful brand asset a company has might be the person leading it. Why the next generation of CMOs and founders are becoming public figures, how to build a personal brand without the cringe, and what it unlocks for the brand behind you.

GOOD HARD TRUTHS

You're too close to your own brand to see it clearly. This is us pointing the GOOD THINKING lens at yours: the honest read on how you're really perceived, the stuff your team feels but can't quite say, and 3 to 5 real actions to run with. Tough love, built to leave the room energized rather than audited.

SOMETHING ELSE?

Every talk is tailored to your audience and shaped with you ahead of the date, from a 20-minute provocation to a half-day working session. Tell us about the room.

Formats: Keynotes · Firesides & panels · Workshops · CMO dinners
